Jardín de Piedras

Jardín de Piedras is a Venezuelan duo formed in Cagua by Sada (vocals) and Dano (guitar and composition). Their musical universe, free from any label, fuses the roots of rock and pop with the raw energy of contemporary punk.

Sada's expressive voice, marked by an early passion for performing, meets Dano's sonic vision, a true musical architect and mentor to the project. Together, they create a sound that is both powerful and introspective, driven by an intuitive connection and a strong spiritual dimension.

Their first single, "Abducción," illustrates this unique alchemy: an organic fusion of rhythms, guitars, and emotions around a positive and universal message

"Be positive and be happy by being yourself."

With an authentic aesthetic and a sincere connection with their audience, Jardín de Piedras is establishing itself as one of the most promising emerging voices on the Venezuelan music scene.
